

Cristina Alonso

Cristina Alonso is a spiritual healer, Reiki master, life coach, and teacher. She holds a Bachelor's degree in Biology and International Relations, as well as a Master's in Business Administration.

She started her professional career as a consultant for the European Commission. Later, she worked for over 12 years in investment banking, where she held different positions as vice president of one of the largest international banks in various countries.

In 2004, she discovered her healing and clairvoyant abilities and decided to develop them further. She graduated from the Barbara Brennan School of Healing in Miami, and has followed further training in Psychoenergetics, the Monroe Institute, and the Clairvision School, among others.

In 2007 she quit her banking job and started a private practice, where she assists her clients in creating the life they dream of and guides them in their healing process.

Additionally, she is the managing director of Alquimia, a company that owns a retreat center in Marbella, Spain, and organizes and teaches retreats, conferences, workshops, and all kind of events that may contribute to the evolution of humankind.
